

Public Houses.

We place before our readers a print of the Marlboro' Hotel, No. 229 Washington Street, Boston, and have drawn a country tavern, for the purpose of exhibiting in contrast the character of a thorough temperance house and a rum one. The benevolent and philanthropic men who established and Mr. Rogers who keeps this hotel, deserve well the thanks and support of the public. An

Temperance Almanac, 1841, back cover